Upon coming to the close of this year, we can look back upon the happy days we spent at Southwestern with a fond remembrance.

It seems just a short time ago that we entered school on a balmy fall morning in 1957 to begin a new year. The freshmen presented a sea of new faces in the already crowded corridors. On the first day neither students nor teachers knew what class was supposed to be in session. But by the end of the week everyone was getting into the regular routine.

The days have grown into weeks, weeks into months, and months into a school year. During the quickly fleeing days we have come into contact with a variety of courses, a wide range of activities, and have met many new friends. Now the year is over. With the close of school many will be leaving Southwestern. They can take with them only the memories of the happy times they have had here. This book is of real significance to them because it brings back memories of those times.

We will long remember . . .

All work and no play makes for a dull day, so the Southwestern students had a variety of activities to occupy their extra time. Little diversions, planned and unplanned, brightened their days.

The regular routine was interrupted on the day the hallway near the office was flooded. Everyone passing to classes had to detour through the library. Many rumors circulated as to the cause of the incident, but nothing was ever proved.

The worst day for the freshmen, but the best day for the seniors, also interrupted the normal class routine. The poor little freshmen wore themselves ragged pleasing the "mean old seniors" on freshman initiation day. The seniors thoroughly enjoyed making the freshmen bow three times and pass out candy. Every freshman had to pass a rigid costume inspection, and they were appropriately decorated with various shades of lipstick. A special assignment was given to one of the algebra classes who, under the direction of Garland Frey, hailed "Forever Mrs. Craw" to the surprised teacher.

The girls had several slumber parties during the year. Why are they called "slumber" parties when the girls yakity-yak all night, getting absolutely no sleep?

Both laughter and tears went into one of the biggest and most thrilling events of the season, the County Basketball Tournament.

Southwestern Rock-n-Rollers at a Sock Hop

Though many basketball games were followed by sock hops, the first officially sponsored dance at Southwestern was the FHA Record Hop at Christmas. In February the Lettermen and the FHA girls collaborated on a Dancing Hearts Ball where Jean Ann Mason and Robert Kerber were crowned Queen and King, respectively, after being elected by the entire student body. The Sunshine girls invited Tony Pawluk to spin the platters for their St. Patrick's Day Sock Hop. After several lessons at school, the Wildcats did an allemande left and swung their partners at the GAA Square Dance. On April 19 the sweethearts of Southwestern donned their prettiest formals and were escorted by their favorite beaus to the gala affair of the season, Junior-Senior Prom.

...Working towards our senior trip

In the picture above, you can see that the senior class has finally reached one of its main goals a senior trip.

Every class diligently works toward a trip. With only two years, the seniors often doubted if they could earn the necessary $4,003 needed for their eight-day jaunt. But they did succeed. And at six o'clock in the morning on April 26, everyone said good-by to his parents and started off on a week of sightseeing.

The seniors took in the sights at Pittsburgh, Gettysburg, Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, and New York. Although bad weather plagued the whole eight days, everyone enjoyed himself.

The juniors are beginning to plan for their trip now. They too have worked at ball games, served suppers, presented a play, and sold magazines in an effort to raise money. Eddie Spilly and Helen Lasley were the super salesmen in the magazine subscription campaign. With one more year's work the juniors will probably be able to climax their senior year with a trip, too.

World Day of Prayer Convocation

... The solemn moments

However hectic the school days were, and although the students were often noisy and mischievous, Southwestern also had a serious side this year.

The students proved that they could be quiet and thoughtful by the attention they gave to the religious convocations which we had during the school year.

Reverend King of Stidham Methodist Church was the guest speaker for the World Day of Prayer Convocation. Reverend Jerome Parker, English and Spanish instructor at Southwestern as well as minister at the Romney Presbyterian Church, presented the talk at a special Thanksgiving convocation.

The Christmas convocation was, of course, a special treat. Patt German narrated the Christmas Story as the curtains swung back revealing students enacting key scenes. The chorus furnished music which completed the theme. Reverend Peter Heemstra of Stidham Presbyterian Church told the Bret Harte story of how "luck" came to the mining camp in the form of an infant.

The student council and faculty co-operate to engage speakers and make these convocations successful.

Both students and faculty certainly profited from the Solemn Moments which were presented this year.

... The after school hours

The ringing of the school bell signifies the end of one more school day. But to the Southwestern students it also was the signal for a busy evening. For many students there were jobs after school where they could earn a little extra pocket money. There were Friday night ball games with sock hops afterwards, and there were dates with the "steady" or best boy or girl friend. Some students liked to putter around the house and spend a lazy evening watching television, cooking a batch of fudge, or woodworking in the basement workshop. A few even did some homework.

... Activities

Southwestern students kept busy all day, every day. Not that they studied much, but there was such a variety of activities in which to participate. Students engaged in activities ranging from cool and classical music to scientific projects. To add to the growing list of extra-curriculars were the Letterman's Club, the Future Teachers of America, and the Beta Club---whose new initiates are pictured here in a glowing candlelight ceremony.

CONNIE TELFER

THE QUEEN AND HER COURT

This year Connie Telfer was crowned queen of THE LAIR. The ceremony took place between halves of the Klondike basketball game on November 19 with John Jackman, senior class president, crowning the queen.

Connie was escorted to the throne by Ed Morehouse. Judy Smith, junior attendant, was escorted by Jerry Oliver; Jean Ann Mason, sophomore attendant, was escorted by John Buck; Jim Shoemaker escorted the freshman attendant, Sharon Leader.

The queen received one dozen white roses and a gift. Each of the attendants received a corsage of red roses placed on a fan that each could keep as a memento of the occasion.

Yearbook Staff works hard

Co-Editors, Julia Joseph and Jobyna Woods, agree on layout

The 1958 LAIR, like Rome, was not built in a day. It had its beginning in the summer of 1957 at the High School Journalism Institute at Indiana University. The co-editors, Jobyna Woods and Julia Joseph, spent two weeks there making the basic plans for every page in the book. Then, with the start of school, the real work began.

Ads were sold, pictures taken, and copy written in a frantic rush to get the pages sent to the printers before the deadline.

Working with the editors were the following class editors: Seniors, Elizabeth Ann Brown and Charlotte Peters; Juniors, Marjorie Elliott and Helen Lasley; Sophomores, Sharon Prather and Judy Martin; and Freshmen, Linda Bohren and Linda Richard.

The staff would like to thank their sponsor, Mrs. Packard, for working so tirelessly with them during the year.

The 1958 LAIR has now emerged, a record in pictures and print of all the incidents, both big and small, that . . . We remember . . . The staff trusts that you will enjoy it for many years.

The Junior Red Cross of Southwestern High School met every second and fourth Tuesday of the month. During the year, the officers were as follows:

President . . . . . Margaret Meharry
Vice-President . . . . . Sharon Shanklin
Secretary . . . . . Nancy Dunkin
Treasurer . . . . . Janet Gustafson

Elizabeth Brown was the president of the County Junior Red Cross Council.

Some of the J.R.C. projects were making tray favors for hospitals, filling Red Cross boxes, and entertaining at the county home. In the summer of 1957 they went to Danville, Illinois, and entertained at the Veterans Hospital there.

One of the most important projects completed this year was establishing a constitution for their council.

Two camps were attended by members of the Southwestern council in the past year. In the summer of 1957 Verna Reeves attended a Regional training camp at Miami University at Oxford, Ohio.

E. Spilly, M. Meharry, and R. Linse go to Boys State and Girls State

Southwestern's representatives to this year's Boys' State and Girls' State have been chosen. Margaret Meharry will attend Girls' State, and Richard Linse and Eddie Spilly will represent their class at Boys' State.

These three students were chosen because of their demonstrations this past year of their leadership and interest. While attending the week-long sessions, they will obtain firsthand information on the government and how it works.

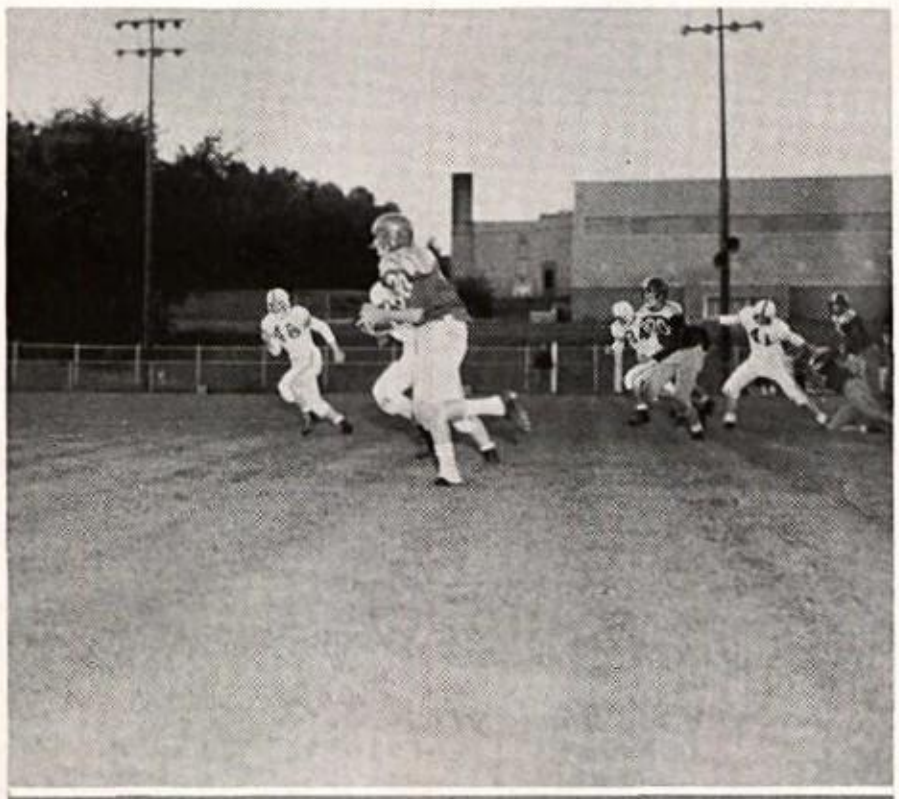
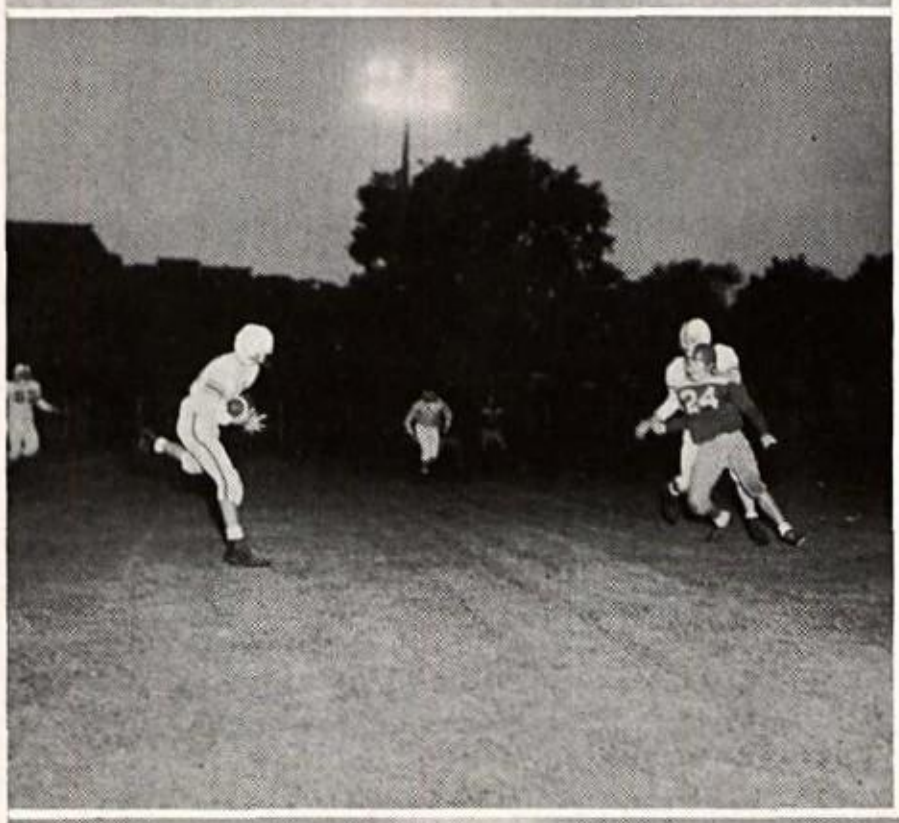
... Sports

From the flip of the coin to the final play Southwestern Wildcats, both players and spectators, enjoyed the excitement and thrills of their first football season. No less was their enthusiasm for a successful, true-Hoosier type basketball team. Of course, the old favorites, baseball and track, made their usual spectacular spring entrances with plenty of backing from the school-spirited fans. The Girls' Athletic Association, not to be outdone, engaged in a variety of activities running from bowling to volley ball.

Football Highlights





Coach Deerr gives last minute instructions to Tom Dailey and John Bays.

Football at Southwestern was played in cool, brisk autumn night air as well as warm, late-afternoon sun. Since Southwestern had no football field, all of the Wildcat games were played away. Though the team was admittedly inexperienced, they provided stiff competition for some classy foes; some tough breaks at crucial points kept the Wildcats from scoring more often. Enthusiastic student fans cheered with the spirit of dyed-in-the-wool football followers. Neither rain nor a losing season dampened their loyal support of a team that kicked, passed, plunged, and charged through every minute of every game.

At least two days per week found the cheerleaders in the gym during seventh hour, practicing jumps, timing, and routines. With the guidance of Mrs. Metzger, they worked out novel block section routines. All of this practice and planning resulted in their being champion cheerleaders at the County Tournament. Judged on the basis of formations, routines, timing, colorfulness, and leadership, these girls made every fan from Southwestern proud of their energy and sportsmanship.

The freshman basketballers had a successful season, losing only three games to tough opponents. This being the first year that these boys had played together, co-operation among the players topped many people's expectations. The hard work of the cheerleaders and players was appreciated by all who witnessed the games and cheered the teams to victory.

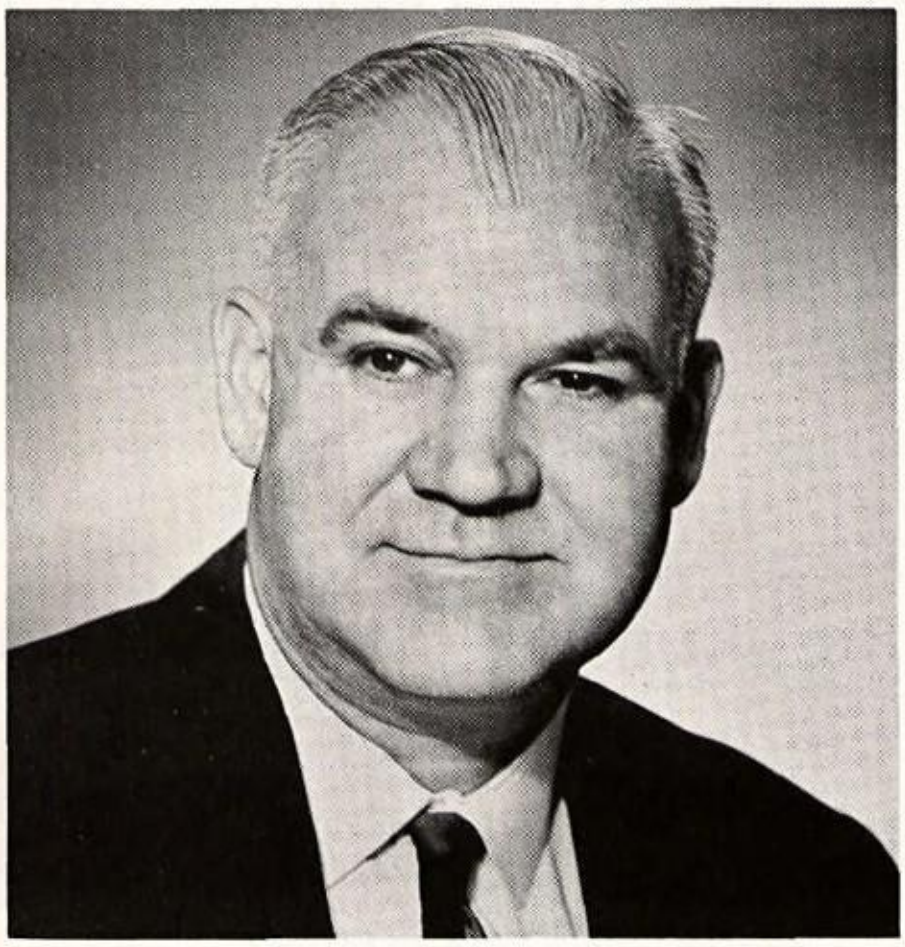
... People

Here are the people, laughing, gay, full of fun, serious at times -- the freshmen, looking up to the seniors; upperclassmen, accepting more responsibility; the faculty, providing guidance and encouragement and working together with the students throughout the year.

Principal, School Board



In the springtime hope springs eternal; the desire to achieve becomes dominant. Preparation for a life of usefulness has reached another milestone as freshmen become sophomores, sophomores become juniors, juniors become seniors, and seniors join the rank and file of useful adults. The opportunitites awaiting the members of high school classes are greater than any in my memory. The need is the greatest, the problems the most difficult, the hazards the most numerous, and the demand for intelligence, skill, fortitude, judgment, and sacrifice is unprecedented. Those of you who rise to the demands of the current scene will become benefactors of all the generations to come.

Math students puzzle over problems

"No, no! A positive times a positive is a positive, and a negative times a negative is a positive," are phrases that could often be heard by anyone passing the door of any mathematics room.

The mathematics department carried a full schedule of classes this year under the capable direction of Mrs. Craw and Mr. Coon.

The General Math students learned the practical application of arithmetic for their everyday lives.

Algebra--basic, advanced, and college--proved to be a very interesting subject to some students and a deep, dark mystery to others. From that first X + 3=5 equation, the students advanced to such functions as determinants in their senior years.

Geometry, with all its theorems, laws, and constructions, opened a new field of study for the members of the plane and solid geometry classes.

During the last semester, some of the seniors were busily engrossed in learning how to read functions of angles such as logarithms, sines, tangents, radians, and secants.

The freshmen winners with the best set of five themes were Linda Bohren and Barbara Smith, tied. Honorable mention: Jim Shoemaker and Annabelle Dexter. Best single themes were written by Linda Richard and Linda Bohren, tied. Honorable mention: Annabelle Dexter and Barbara Smith.

The sophomore winner for best set and best single was Jerry Borders. David Patrick, Jean Ann Mason, and Larry Cox received Honorable mention for single themes.

Barbara Sattler had both the best set and the best single theme in the junior class.

Senior, Jobyna Woods, was winner in both the best set and best single divisions. Honorable mention for the best set was given to Mary Ellen Rauch, and Charlotte Peters received honorable mention for the best single.

History can be interesting

The Social Studies Department was a very important part of Southwestern's curriculum. Through these subjects the students kept up with current events and learned why present world conditions exist.

Who could possibly forget those weekly projects in World History, Mr. Siler's "little" tests, or Mr. Dickerson's varying of Government class with such timely topics as "Unusual Foods"? The Sociology class probably held the record for special speakers. Among those invited to speak were the sheriff and an F. B. I. agent.

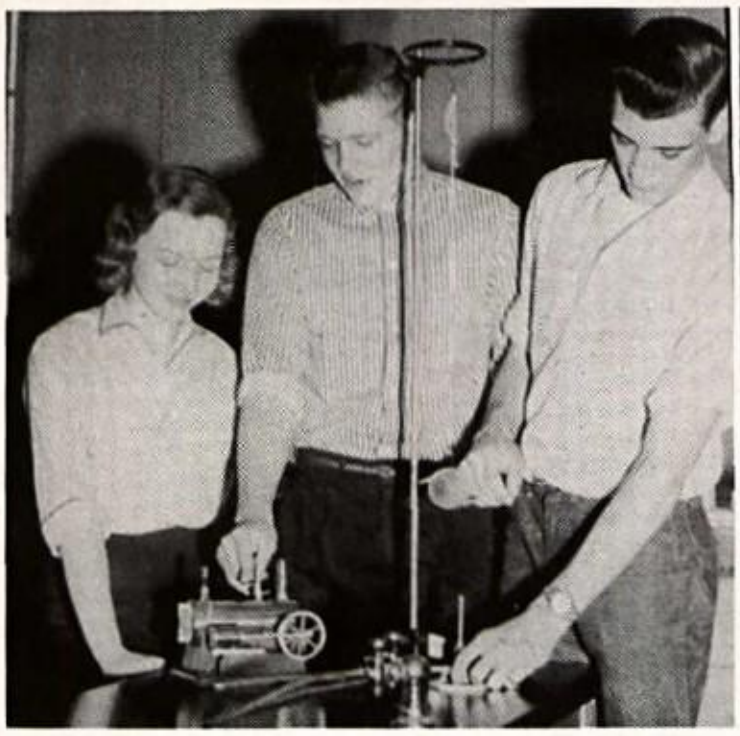
Nature is Revealed to Science Classes



Charlotte Peters, John Bays, and Craig Wright examine a working model in physics.

Donita Howe and John Jackman measure chemicals for an experiment

Freshman biology was replaced this year by general science; so, much to the delight of the girls, nothing has to be dissected.

"A body submerged in liquid is buoyed upward with a force equal to the weight displaced" is a physics principle that could be paraphrased to read "a student buried in this course climbs out with a speed proportionate to his own ability." Some would be climbing yet had they not been promoted to the senior class.

Crash! Tinkle, tinkle! Gasp -- open the window and let in some fresh air! Those are sounds familiar to all chemistry students. Every Tuesday and Thursday Mr. Lyon bravely kept close watch over the experimenters. For something to blow up was not an uncommon occurrence. After the explosion occurring when Kay Kerlin heated a test tube, powder was still gushing over the table. And where was Kay? Taking refuge behind the nearest table, of course. Phil Bryant sucked too hard on a dropping (pipette) and got a mouthful of sulfuric acid.

The Home Economics classes had a busy year. The freshmen discussed problems in dating, and boy-girl relationships. The classes also learned arrangement of centerpieces and made unusual decorations.

In the study of foods, the sophomores made pies, while the seniors worked with meats. Another project in foods was preserving by canning or freezing.

The home nursing courses provided practical experience as well as an enjoyable class.

The classes also had clothing projects. The clothes were styled and fitted to the special needs of the individual. The climax for the class was a style show in which the girls modeled their beautiful products of hard work for the public.

Everyone in Mrs. Rosen's or Miss Farrell's typing classes is familiar with these words which signify the start of a timed writing. To hit the correct keyswith speed is the ambition of every student in this class, although fingers and mind just don't seem to cooperate sometimes.

Queer chicken scratches on paper are technically referred to in shorthand class as Gregg shorthand. Other people are not expected to decipher them, but it makes a hit with Mrs. Rosen if the student himself knows what they are. Shorthand also comes in handy for writing notes in study hall.

Many students manage to struggle through bookkeeping each year. In addition to giving the students a background for accounting principles, a practical aspect of bookkeeping during their undergraduate days is the attempt to budget their meager allowances.

Typing skill and business office duties are combined in office practice class. Students in this class obtain a working knowledge of several office machines and learn to carry out normal office duties.

Sharon Zimmerman: school secretary

Southwestern, like all schools, must have its working force, for a school cannot run itself. Through co-operation announcements were made on time and records were kept by the secretary; the bus drivers managed to get all the students to and from school; the custodians kept the building clean and in working condition; and the cooks served wholesome food.

Of course, the routine did vary occasionally. A few windows that were broken had to be replaced, and water had to be mopped in dressing rooms and hallways. One of the cooks unfortunately passed beneath a shelf at the time a can of peaches fell off. No surgery was needed, but immediate first aid at the hospital had to be given.

Those who keep the school running smoothly

Through this year the staff worked hand in hand to keep the school on its toes; and, happily, the building was still standing at the close of school, despite the rigors of the school year.

Class of 1958

On August 30, 1957, sixty-five venturesome seniors stormed into Southwestern High with the dream of completing their high school education almost a reality.

Soon the activities of their senior year began to gain momentum. The class elected John Jackman to be their president, Robert Kerber as vice-president, Kay Kerlin as secretary, and Marilyn May as treasurer. Mr. Bernhardt and Mr. Parker were senior sponsors.

They launched their first money-making project by sponsoring Uncle Bob Hardy and his group of entertainers. They cleared approximately $5, which was collected from the sale of soft drinks. Undaunted by their first failure at making money, each senior worked diligently setting up booths, collecting prizes, securing entertainment, or broadcasting publicity to make their carnival a huge success. Much of the money needed for their trip was earned this one night. Because of Mr. Siler's illness, Mr. Steven Buck of the Purdue University Speech Department directed their play.

Four days after the play, another unforgettable evening took place -- the Junior-Senior prom. Heavenly music by the Kollege Klubmen and divine decorations turned the gymnasium into a place of beauty. This was a memorable night for the seniors. A week later fifty-five sleepy seniors boarded the buses for Washington, D.C., and New York City for eight glorious, fun-filled days. Mr. and Mrs. Thayer and Mr. Deerr went along to keep them in hand.

During the year Linda Fulks left to be married; Joyce Morris also withdrew. To make up for these losses, Bill Cummings, Don McNeil, and Ruth Mahoney joined the troupe.

Although the Seniors were students at Southwestern High only two years, they know that these years shall never be forgotten.

Junior Sponsors, Miss Farrell and Mr. Black, look over magazine subscriptions

From selling magazines in October to entertaining the seniors in April, were many busy months for this year's juniors. Their primary money-making scheme was selling magazines. The goal was $2,000, which they achieved. As a reward for their efforts, the junior class was feted with a sock hop starring "Bouncin' Bill Baker."

Under the direction of Mr. Parker, they presented a three act comedy entitled "You'll Die Laughing."

During basketball season the class, with the help of their parents, served two suppers.

On November 12, 1957, the class enjoyed a party with volleyball, basketball, and ping-pong as active sports. Last, but certainly not least, were refreshments which were indulged in by all.

Sponsors, Mrs. Peek and Mr. Savant

Class of 1960

Mrs. Peek and Mr. Savant were sponsors of the sophomore class for the 1957-58 school year.

The big project for the sophomores was entering a float in the Christmas parade. The float represented a ginger bread house. Students from the sophomore class stayed after school for two weeks, working vigorously to finish the float in time for the parade. There was a ginger bread man standing in the doorway of the house; lollipops made from cardboard boxes and cellophane stood at each corner. Cards depicting the Christmas spirit were placed all around the outside forming a fence. Thousands of napkins were carefully placed one by one into chicken netting to form the snow white lace around the outside. The Junior High School baton twirlers made a pretty sight riding on the float; and Jack Boas, dressed as Santa Claus riding on the cab, topped off the float.

For other money raising projects the sophomores worked in the concession stand and sold soft drinks. They served supper in the cafeteria during a ballgame. For one of the sophomore class parties, they had a skating party at Aca-Y-Alla, which was open to the public, so it was also a project to raise money. For their second class party the sophomores spent a day of fun at McCormicks Creek State Park.

FRESHMAN SPONSORS:
Johnnie Deerr and Kathleen Vaughn

The Freshmen started their high school life at Southwestern with initiation. An important part of the first year was ordering their black class sweaters with white letters on a red background. Those were ordered early in October and received the day of the first basketball game. Two of the projects to raise money were serving at a basketball game with a sock hop afterward and taking charge of concessions at another game. Their first class party was held at Aca Y Alla and the second during a rainy day at Turkey Run. On honor day and throughout the year, the freshmen were given many honors. Among these were honors for football, basketball, essay contests, algebra contest, speech contest, track, spelling, and attendance. They are now looking forward to the next step in their high school life and further laurels, both as individuals and as a class.
